About San Francisco

The mood-setting fog has always been a part of San Francisco’s scenery, gently surrounding and defining the bay. It might even have been this enthralling, blanketing mist that kept many European explorers from finding this land.

It was not until 1579 that Sir Francis Drake landed at Point Reyes (Drake’s Bay), 35 miles north of San Francisco. He claimed the land for Queen Elizabeth, and sailed past the Golden Gate. Some years later Sebastian Cermeno, sailing under the Spanish flag, landed at Point Reyes and renamed it La Bahia de San Francisco, after the founder of the Franciscan order. It wasn’t until nearly 200 years later that the San Francisco Bay would be discovered.

Juan Manuel de Ayala became the first European to enter the San Francisco Bay in 1775. That same year Juan Bautista de Anza followed suit, and built a presidio (fort) on the southern side of the Golden Gate and the Mission Dolores, now in the heart of the Mission district. A small village known as Yerba Buena developed between the two and became the birthplace of today’s San Francisco, where in 1847 it was officially named so.

Gold was discovered on January 24, 1948 at John Sutter’s sawmill in Colma, just 100 northeast of San Francisco. Word spread, and thousands of fortune seekers swarmed into San Francisco. With the arrival of the 49ers, the once slowly growing village became a bustling city. In 1850, California became the 31st state in the union, and San Francisco became incorporated as a city that same year.

As the initial Gold Rush subsided, a second rush took place in 1859, with the mining of silver at Comstock Lode. During this time, the population increased significantly, businesses grew to meet new demands, and San Francisco proved itself as an important port and financial center.

On April 18, 1906 things changed for San Francisco as an 8.3-magnitude earthquake struck San Francisco. Fires burned for several days, 700 people were killed, and 28,000 buildings were destroyed. The destruction was followed by a decade of rebuilding to revitalize the once vibrant city.

In the 1930s, two magnificent symbols of the area, the Bay Bridge and the Golden Gate Bridge, were built. Naval shipyards sprang up in the city, as San Francisco became a major launching pad for military operations during World War II. San Francisco, in the 1950s, gave birth to the “Beat” generation. The 1960s was a generation of hippies and the Haight-Ashbury. With local bands like the Grateful Dead and Jefferson Airplane setting the movement, the “Summer of Love” was born. In the 1970s, homosexuals stepped “out of the closet,” and gay rights movement reached a new peak.
In the 1990s, the Bay Area experienced another period of urban renewal with a building boom that brought new life to neighborhoods and historic buildings. Also during this time, a new media boom took place in Silicon Valley. During this age of new media, the Bay Area became a major player dot-com game. Today’s cutting edge scene lies in biotech. And, like in the past, the San Francisco is right in the midst of the action with UCSF’s new Mission Bay Campus.

San Francisco is a center for higher education with schools such as UC Berkeley, UCSF, Stanford University, and UCSF – Hastings School of the Law. San Francisco is also of city full of international flavors displayed through its culinary delights and colorful culture. With such amenities, and San Francisco’s skylight continually changing and expanding, more and more people are moving into San Francisco.

In an age of freeways and urban sprawl, San Francisco remains a compact city with a thriving downtown business and retail center, and attractive, friendly neighborhoods. With its sheer physical beauty, cultural diversity, leisure and recreational offerings, and ideal climate San Francisco has something for everyone. Today, it is still recognized as a global jewel.

San Francisco Neighborhoods

- Alamo Square: These popular four blocks surround the grassy park and playground called Alamo Square. Most famous for its picture-perfect row of colorful Victorians, the "Painted Ladies," Alamo Square has true San Francisco charm.

- Anza Vista: Anza Vista was developed during the 1930s and 1940s. A quiet neighborhood in the Western Addition, the homes, flats and apartments of Anza Vista are designed with little ornamentation.

- Ashbury Heights: Uphill from the heart of the Haight Ashbury is the community of Ashbury Heights, also known as Upper Haight.

- Bernal Heights: South of the Mission District and bordered by Cesar Chavez/Army Street, Bayshore and Alemany boulevards, Bernal Heights with its pastel-colored houses sits quietly away from the hustle and bustle of urban San Francisco.

- Bayview/Hunters Point: This working-class neighborhood is on the southeast side of the city and is near the former Navy yard and 3Com (Candlestick) Park. There is a mixture of single-family homes, apartments and factories. The main commercial strip for this area is Third Street.

- Buena Vista Hill: Lying adjacent to Ashbury Heights and home to the city's most heavily forested area is Buena Vista Park. Steep slopes with vast views are lined with baroque mansions, restored Victorians, family homes, flats and apartments.

- Castro: Considered the center of alternative living in San Francisco, the Castro district offers some of the most colorful and vibrant settings in the city. The neighborhood's main thoroughfare, Castro Street, is home to many restaurants, alternative bookstores and diverse shops. The Castro is the center for the city's gay-lesbian population.

- Chinatown: Chinatown is home to one of North America’s largest Asian communities. It is a bustling 18 square blocks centered along Grant and Stockton from Bush and Columbus. The streets are lined with restaurants, shops, and trading companies offering a variety of colorful merchandise.

- Cow Hollow: Cow Hollow is located between Pacific Heights and the Marina, consisting of a small section along Union Street. Once filled with natural springs, sand dunes and a small lagoon, Cow Hollow is home to many young professionals and is characterized by quaint homes and apartments. At the heart of Cow Hollow is popular Union Street, which is lined with fashionable shops and restaurants.

- Crocker Amazon: This middle-class neighborhood lies on land that once belonged to the Crocker Estate. The neighborhood is well maintained, with some streets beautifully landscaped and most front yards well manicured. Boundaries include Amazon and Crocker avenues, Mission Street and McLaren Park.
• Downtown/Financial District: Some call San Francisco's downtown "Wall Street West" because it is ranked as one of the top financial centers in the nation. The Financial District begins at Montgomery Street and extends east toward the Embarcadero, comprising only a few city blocks.

• Duboce Triangle: Beautifully restored Victorian homes line the Duboce Triangle. Nearby, Noe Valley provides public transportation, and lively 24th Street, filled with restaurants, coffee houses, pubs and boutiques, provides entertainment.

• Eureka Valley: Eureka Valley is made up of both flat land and hills. On the lower slope is the San Francisco archbishop's headquarters, and on the upper is the dramatic pinnacle known as Corona Heights.

• Excelsior: Excelsior borders McLaren Park on the east and Portola District on the north. The homes in this area are at least 50 years old, and are predominantly single-family, stucco, and wood frame. There are also apartments, duplexes and public housing available. And, it is only a short bus ride to downtown.

• Forest Hill: Once a part of a 4,000-acre ranch owned by the last Mexican mayor of San Francisco, Jose Noe, Forest Hill was broken down into single-family home lots in 1912. The streets and common areas in Forest Hill are beautifully maintained by the Forest Hill Association.

• Glen Park: On the lower slopes of Diamond Heights, just south of Noe Valley, sits the charming and quiet neighborhood of Glen Park. Victorians and architecturally interesting while modern homes line Laidley Street.

• Golden Gate Heights: Sometimes called Larsen Peak or Sunset Heights Park, Golden Gate Heights is perched on a 725-foot-high bluff, and is characterized by huge retaining walls and panoramic views of the ocean.

• Haight Ashbury: Universally known for its ’60s flair, Haight Ashbury is still recognized for its creativity and diversity. Haight Ashbury is home to colorful Victorians, eclectic shops, sidewalk cafes and popular nightclubs. Haight Ashbury is also famous for its residents of the past, including Jerry Garcia, the Jefferson Airplane and Janis Joplin, to name a few.

• Hayes Valley: This is one of the up-and-coming San Francisco neighborhoods. Located close to downtown, with Franklin and Divisadero streets at its east and west boundaries, Hayes Valley has been expanding with new restaurants and shops.

• Ingleside: Located in the southwestern corner of the city, Ingleside enjoys more sun than the rest of San Francisco. This neighborhood is close to the Pacific and has good views of San Bruno Mountain and Mt. Davidson. Nearby are San Francisco State University, Stonestown Shopping Center, and Lake Merced.

• Japantown: Home to thousands of citizens of Japanese descent, this neighborhood has become a mini ginza known as Nihonmachi. With restaurants, shops, and galleries it’s a bit of Japan on this side of the Pacific.
- Jordan Park: With boundaries including Geary Boulevard, California Street and Parker Avenue, Jordan Park is adjacent to Children's Hospital and home to many doctors. The area has handsome stately homes that are well designed and nicely landscaped.

- Lake: The Lake Street area borders the Presidio, Arguello Boulevard and Sea Cliff. Renovated Edwardian homes and apartments line the streets of this quiet neighborhood where parking is easily accessible.

- Lakeshore: Located on the Pacific on the southern border of San Francisco Lakeshore was the last neighborhood in the city to be developed. This area includes San Francisco State University, Lake Merced, two golf courses and Stonestown Galleria, which is the only "suburban" shopping plaza in the city. The area has mostly apartment housing, but there are also small tracts, condos and single-family homes.

- Laurel Heights: This neighborhood centers on the Laurel Village shopping center, which caters not only to residents but also to elite clientele from Pacific Heights and Presidio Heights.

- Marina: Once marshland, the Marina is home to many young professionals and the landmark Palace of Fine Arts. The Marina attracts many seeking the pleasures of jogging, sunbathing and strolling by the bay. The Marina Green is a wonderful place to enjoy the outdoors, with a pedestrian path that is perfect for rollerblading, walking or running.

- Mission: The Mission is home to the city's oldest structure, Mission Dolores, the sixth Franciscan mission along El Camino Real. Located nearby is the ornate Mission Dolores Basilica. Within the Mission area, it is easy to find spicy taquerias, Mexican bakeries and colorful murals depicting Mexican and Latino history. The original Levi Strauss factory is located in this area at 250 Valencia St. Today, the Mission is a popular area for a mix of working-class Latino families, young professionals, artists and others who enjoy its culturally diverse atmosphere.

- Mission Bay: While also known as Mission Rock, Mission Creek and China Basin, Mission Bay is a rapidly evolving area in the city, thanks in part to the new San Francisco Giants' stadium. This eclectic neighborhood features San Francisco's houseboat enclave, as well as the Lefty O'Doul drawbridge and a new University of California, San Francisco campus.

- Mt. Davidson Manor: This conservative and well-manicured neighborhood is home to freestanding, middle-income family homes that were built before World War II, many of which offer wonderful views of San Bruno Mountain.

- Nob Hill: Nob Hill hosts some of the most elite San Francisco addresses, as well as some of San Francisco's richest history. With the completion of the cable car in 1843, the influential and wealthy moved to Nob Hill. The Fairmont Hotel and the Pacific Union Club reside nearby, while impressive apartments and flats dot the area.

- Noe Valley: Nestled in the lowland between Twin Peaks and Diamond Heights, Noe Valley is a quaint neighborhood, centered around 24th Street, with its coffee shops, boutiques, bookstores, and multitude of ethnic restaurants. Architecture in Noe Valley is predominantly Victorian.
- North Beach: Also known as the "Little Italy" of the West, North Beach is abundant with Italian restaurants, cafes and bakeries. The oldest street in the city, Grant Avenue, extends from Chinatown into North Beach where its Chinese eateries and shops are transformed to Barbary Coast saloons, second-hand shops, pizza parlors and clothing boutiques.

- Pacific Heights: One of the most prestigious neighborhoods in San Francisco, Pacific Heights is home to the most breathtaking views of the Golden Gate Bridge and the bay. It is home to many of San Francisco's first families, as well as successful entrepreneurs and artists.

- Parkside: Parallel to Pine Lake Park and Stern Grove, Parkside has a community feel, with two playgrounds, a meadow-like playing field at McCoppin Square and elementary schools with their playing fields and swing sets. This area is predominantly filled with single-family residences.

- Portola Heights: This area is also known as University Mound, because its street names include Oxford, Cambridge, Harvard and Yale. Landmarks include a home for the elderly, the Convent of the Good Shepherd home for girls, and McLaren Park.

- Potrero Hill: Potrero Hill sits south of 16th Street and is framed by Potrero Avenue, Cesar Chavez/Army Street, and Highway 280. The neighborhood has a community feel all its own; it even has its own weekly newspaper, the Potrero View. Pleasant window-shopping and cafe dining is popular with locals.

- Presidio Heights: Located just west of Pacific Heights and adjacent to the Presidio, Presidio Heights is a small enclave of elegant homes. Some of San Francisco's most elite families and dignitaries reside here.

- Richmond: This peninsula is home to many 1920s duplexes and a few spacious Edwardians. The Richmond has many Chinese and Russian restaurants.

- Russian Hill: Russian Hills world-famous Lombard Street twists down the hill to the delight of tourists and the dismay of cab drivers. Just west of North Beach and east of the Marina, Russian Hill offers outstanding views of San Francisco Bay and downtown.

- Sea Cliff: Sea Cliff attracts many sightseers wanting to see the beautiful mansions and beaches in this area. China and Baker beaches are situated where the Golden Gate meets the Pacific Ocean.

- Sherwood Forest: This neighborhood lies on the southwesterly slope of Mt. Davidson and is home to elaborate ranch-style and groves of eucalyptus, cypress and pine trees. City College of San Francisco is nearby.

- South Beach: Encompassing the lively Embarcadero, South Park, the SBC Park, and the newly constructed MUNI Metro extension is South Beach. The San Francisco Giants' ballpark has transformed the area, bringing clean streets and new cafes to this South of Market neighborhood.

- South of Market (SOMA): SOMA is one of the richest historical areas in the city, and, today, has a character all its own. Today, SOMA is the creative, cutting-edge center of the city, home to the majority of graphic arts, design, film, multimedia businesses and more.
- St. Francis Wood: This neighborhood consists of an elite tract of home on the southwest side of San Francisco. The beautifully landscaped curving lanes lead to distinguished, grand-scale home.

- Sunset: Before the 1930s, the Sunset district was made up of sand dunes that extended west to Ocean Beach. The Sunset is located just south of Golden Gate Park, north of Sloat Boulevard, and framed by Stanyan Street and Ocean Beach. The Sunset is one of the foggiest pockets of all of San Francisco, thanks to its location near Ocean Beach.

- Telegraph Hill: Coit Tower, a 180-foot tower resembling a fire-hose nozzle, sits authoritatively at the top of Telegraph Hill.

- Twin Peaks: Named for two hills reaching approximately 910 feet each, Twin Peaks offers the most panoramic views of the city and bay. Some homes on the northern crest of Twin Peaks resemble Spanish Villas, while the eastern side has mainly apartment houses.

- Western Addition: Western Addition includes the plateau west of Civic Center, stretching west to Masonic and Presidio avenues. Victorian houses, many restored, dominate the area's architecture. Sights include the musically historic Fillmore Auditorium.

- West Portal: On the western side of the lengthy Twin Peaks tunnel, the charming neighborhood of West Portal emerges, nestled at the foot of Mt. Davidson, Forest Heights and Edgehill Heights. With small businesses, a variety of restaurants and a movie theater, West Portal is its own "city within the city." The neighborhood is known for its rather sedate, middle-class lifestyle.

- Yerba Buena: This neighborhood South of Market (SOMA) is centered around the Yerba Buena Center and Gardens, which is quickly becoming a sophisticated center for art and business.
Weather

The San Francisco Bay Area enjoys one of the mildest climates on earth, and one of the most diverse. The climate varies throughout the area. Along the Pacific Ocean, fog prevails during much of the summer months because of the dry inversion of continental air currents and the moist air currents from the Pacific. As you move inward from the coast, fog disappears, in part because of warming air currents and a gradual increase in altitude. Areas east and south of San Francisco experience cooler winters and warmer summers.

San Francisco is blessed with a temperature marine climate and enjoys mild weather year round. Temperatures seldom rise above 70°F (21°C) or fall below 10°F (5°C). Morning and evening fogs roll in during the summer months, but rarely persist.

Just when you get lulled by the sameness of the weather, it changes. Yet, as with California in general, there is really no better place to be.

Commuting & Transportation

From San Francisco’s extraordinary cable car run down Clay Street in 1873 to the present-day computerized Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART), San Francisco has had a long and successful tradition of public transportation.

San Francisco boats the seventh-largest public transit system in the United States (measured by ridership). The San Francisco Municipal Railway (MUNI) has in its conveyance arsenal a variety of cable cars and vintage streetcars. Subway/surface light-rail vehicles and electric and diesel buses transport thousands of passengers daily. This substantial ridership, and the fact that one-half of MUNI’s fleet uses electricity as a means of energy, allows San Francisco to minimize environmental impact on the urban environment.

State Requirements for Drivers

Driver’s License
You are required by California law to obtain a California driver’s license within ten days of establishing residence within the state. Since the license is used constantly for purposes of identification, you should get it as soon as possible.

To obtain a license, you must pass the following tests:

- Written test on rules of the road (mandatory)
- Eye test (mandatory)
- Driving test (If you do not have a valid license from another state or if your license has been revoked or has expired for one year.)

Automobile Registration
If you are moving from out of state, you must register your out-of-state vehicle upon entry. To avoid penalty, you have twenty days to resolve the matter. The registration fee depends on the make and year of the car. In general, newer cars and more expensive cars will cost more to register.

Registration costs include:

- Registration fees
- License plate charge
- Sales tax, if car was purchased within the last ninety days

When registering your out-of-state vehicle, be sure to have:

- California smog certificate
- Out-of-state title or registration
- Vehicle you are registering

Driving Requirements

Smog Certificates
All post-1965 model cars that you plan to register in California must have a smog certificate prior to registration, even if no additional smog device is necessary. Certification charges will vary. Smog inspections can be completed at many convenient locations. You may want to check with a nearby service station or dealer for details. Certificates must be renewed every two years.

Child Safety Seats
California law requires that a child passenger restraint (child safety seat or booster seat) be used on all children until they are at least 6 years old or weigh at least 60 pounds, and be placed in the back seat.

Seat Belt Law
Under California law, both the driver and all passengers in a passenger vehicle must wear seat belts.

Insurance
Automobile insurance must provide minimum coverage for each accident. Check with your insurance company for the amounts.

Voter Registration

Every resident of the State of California is qualified to register to vote if he or she is a citizen of the United States and will be 18 years old or older prior to the next regular election following registration. There are no requirements for the duration of residency to qualify. The last day to register is one month before an election. Registration remains in effect until a voter moves or dies. Information may be obtained through the following agencies:
